Jacob's Ladder is a supplemental reading program that implements targeted readings from short stories, poetry and nonfiction sources. Students engage in an inquiry process that moves from lower to higher order thinking skills. Starting with basic literary understandings, students learn to critically analyze texts by determining implications and consequences, generalizations, main ideas and/or creative synthesis. Our small group reading activities will be engaging and fun while helping to enhance your child's reading comprehension and critical thinking skills. Students will "climb" each ladder together and learn to be more confident readers and critical thinkers along the way! Students will also work on their creative writing abilities by writing extension short stories, poetry and nonfiction pieces to go with each text set they read. We will also work on our social skills and get to know one another each day during our routine morning meetings!

Beat the Summer Slide with Project Based Learning

We will start with some edible chemistry. Many kids dread chemistry problems and fear their difficulty. Yet this will not happen during summer school, we will have some fun and tasty recipes which include color-changing lemonade, rock candy crystals, and yeast in action. We will also make Oobleck and look at the properties and decide if it is a solid or liquid. Next, we will make a zipline; and learn about motion and engineering. We will then learn about solar ovens and create one. The students will enjoy watching their Smores cook in the oven and enjoy eating them. Since it is summer, everyone enjoys the lakes. We will make two different boats and see which one floats better. One of these boats will be designed on TinkerCad a 3D printing program. We will also create a spinning top and learn about spin duration and the physics of a top. We will finish summer school by sliding into some hands-on algebra.
