On Wednesday, May 1, the senior class at South High School is celebrating College Signing Day, a day in which students decide where to continue their education.

This celebration is for all seniors who plan to attend a two-year, four-year, or technical college as well as those entering the military. During this celebration, seniors will have the opportunity to take photos with mascots from local colleges in front of greenscreens showing their college of choice, as well as decorate cupcakes with their future educational institution's colors. The celebration will end with a group photo of all seniors wearing their future college's apparel. Confirmed schools to be in attendance are Minnesota State University Moorhead, North Dakota State College of Science, M State, and Concordia College.

College Signing Day is a national initiative sponsored by Reach Higher (an initiative started by Michelle Obama), Better Make Room (a national student-based initiative), and the Common Application. It is about declaring a commitment to reach higher and show their commitment to their future education.
